The movie-theater having an orchestral performance is becoming more frequent. The modern auditorium screen, the moving picture sound track, and the orchestra, are coming into closer and closer harmony. The screen, with its moving picture, and the orchestra, with its playing upon the well-known film music, are now blended into a symphonic whole that is pleasing to the ear and eye. The orchestra, under the direction of a well-known conductor, is now being used in every major movie theater in the country. The orchestra is not only used to accompany the song, but it is also used to accompany the dance, the program, and the film.